PURIM

A POTENT DAY

The Zohar notes that Purim is similar to Yom HaKipurim. This means that what is accomplished on Yom Kippur by fasting can be accomplished on Purim by rejoicing. Furthermore, the very name Kipurim (“like Purim”), implies that Purim is the greater Yom-Tov, impacting a person more powerfully.

Indeed, Chazal teach that when Moshiach comes, all the Yomim-Tovim will cease to exist; only the Yom-Tov of Purim will remain. Chassidus explains that the kedusha and joy of Purim are so great, that even when we have the kedusha and joy of the geulah, Purim will still stand out.

(תיקוני זהר נ"ז ע"ב, מדרש משלי פ"ט, ת"מ חט"ז ע' 118 ושי"ג)

The author of Chiddushei HaRim, the first Rebbe of Ger, illustrated the powerful potential of Purim with a story:

There was once a Yid who set out on a journey, intending to commit a grievous sin, and took along five hundred gold rubles that he had patiently amassed over the years. On his way, he suddenly heard the heartfelt cries of a family in distress. They were being evicted for not paying their rent. His pity aroused, he gave them all the money that he had intended to use for the aveira.

His deed aroused such a great tumult in Shamayim that it was decided that whatever this man would decree, would materialize. However, to ensure that the privilege would not be misused, it was ordained that he become a drunkard.

Some time later, a terrible tzara descended upon the world. The Baal Shem Tov sent his talmidim to beg this drunken Yid to intercede and ask HaShem for mercy. They repeatedly found him drunk, until finally, catching him sober, they presented their request and he succeeded in abolishing the decree.

The Chiddushei Harim would conclude: Purim is a day of eis ratzon, when every Yid – like that drunkard – can accomplish great things, without limitation. However, to allow this to happen, one must make sure that the merrymaking will not interfere with this mighty potential.

CELEBRATING PURIM

The Shulchan Aruch rules that one should wear fine clothes when going to hear the Megilla. In fact the holy talmid of the Arizal, Reb Chaim Vital, would immerse in the mikveh and then put on Shabbos clothes in honor of Purim.

It is also written that after returning home from shul on Purim night, one should have the table set and candles lit, and partake of a seuda in honor of Purim.

CONSIDER

How can the merrymaking on Purim be both a source of brachos and a distraction from it?
If Purim is really a Yom-Tov why is it permissible to do melacha?

Throughout the month of Adar, the conduct of, Reb Shmuel Abba of Zichlin was very joyful, and on Purim his avoda expressed extraordinary simcha. He had harsh words for those who did not treat the day properly, or who did not dress in their Shabbos clothes in honor of the Megillah reading.

One year, his beis midrash was filled with all the townsmen who had come to hear the Megillah. All were dressed in their Shabbos best, except for one man, who wore his weekday garb. When some chassidim questioned his behavior, the man responded (playing on a common Yiddish folk-expression), “Purim is not a Yom-Tov and fever is not a sickness.” At that moment, the tzaddik entered, gave this fellow a piercing look and said, “Purim is a Yom-Tov, and fever is a sickness.”

As soon as he arrived home that night, this man suddenly fell ill with a raging fever. When it only worsened as the days wore on, he sent a message to the tzaddik, asking for a bracha.

The tzaddik replied, “Now he knows that fever is really a sickness, and he needs to know that Purim is really a Yom-Tov.”

The man suffered in sickness the entire year, until the following Purim.

LIMITLESS ZEAL

We read in the Gemara that on Purim one must drink “until he cannot differentiate (“ad d'lo yada”) between ‘cursed be Haman’ and ‘blessed be Mordechai.’”

The Rebbe explains: The goal of ad d'lo yada (literally, “until he does not know...”) is that a person reach a level of utter subservience to HaShem, which is not limited by his own understanding, and through this, all undesirable perspectives will be washed away. As a result, one will have the strength to continue this avoda throughout the entire year.

(מגילה ז,ב, לקו"ש ח"ד ע' 1277)

On the first Purim after his chasuna, the Alter Rebbe gave a non-literal exposition of the avoda of attaining the level of ad d'lo yada. On Purim, he said, we must ensure that the lo – literally, “the No,” that is, the things that are forbidden – should be yada (“known”). What we are supposed to do is well known, but one must also know what is forbidden, so that it can be treated with extra caution.

(ס"ה ש"תש"ה ע' 72)

The Megillah says that after the miracle of Purim, the Yidden were blessed with simcha (“joy”), which Chazal understand to mean that they were now able to celebrate the Yomim-Tovim. The Rebbe explains that although other nations also have holidays, they celebrate them with drinking and unbridled conduct. Yidden, by contrast, even when they rejoice and drink they become closer to HaShem, and heighten their yiras Shamayim and holiness.

WOMEN'S MEGILAH READING

Which brachos are recited at a women's megilah reading and who should recite them?

Although reading the megilah is a time-bound mitzva, women are obligated since they too were saved by the Purim miracle and Queen Esther was a central part of the story.

The proper way to fulfill the mitzva is in a large crowd, "b'rov am hadras melech." Women should also ideally hear it in public, but if that proves difficult, they may hear it privately. Moreover, if their young children will disturb, it is preferable that they do not bring them to shul.

Whenever one who already heard the megilah is reading for another, it is preferable that a listener recite the bracha and be motzi the other listeners. While some poskim suggest that each woman should recite the bracha on her own, the accepted practice is for one woman to be motzi all the rest with the bracha.

What bracha should a woman recite? The bracha recited in shul is al mikra megilah ("on the reading of the megilah"), and that's what some poskim hold women should say. However, others say that a woman should say lishmoa megilah, or lishmoa mikra megilah ("to hear the [reading of the] megilah"). The reason, they explain, is that a woman's obligation in megilah is intrinsically different than men's. For men, the mitzva is to read it, and those who hear it are considered as having read it since shomeia k'oneh. A woman, however, is required to hear it. In practice, a woman should recite lishmoa mikra megilah, though if she recited the regular bracha she is yotzei.

While some poskim hold that a woman may read the megilah for herself, the longtime practice is that women hear it read by a man. Some add that a woman who reads it wouldn't be yotzei since her obligation is to hear it being read by someone who is obligated to read it (i.e. a man).

The bracha recited after megilah, "harav es riveinu," is either an after bracha on the megilah or a bracha of thanks for the miracle. Practical differences include whether one who talked after the megilah can still recite the bracha, and whether one recites the bracha without a minyan (as the bracha of thanks was only instituted in a congregation, where there is pirsumei nisa). In practice, the bracha may be recited even without a minyan, and women as well recite this bracha.

R. HILLEL PARITCHER

R. Hillel Molisov from Paritch is one of the most well-known Chassidim of all time, the symbol of an oved, and a hallowed gaon and tzadik. R. Hillel was a Chossid of the Mitteler Rebbe and the Tzemach Tzedek. He was for many years the rov in Babroisk and was appointed by the Mitteler Rebbe as mashpia for the Yidden living in the colonies. R. Hillel reared many young chassidim according to the ways of Chassidus, and even taught and wrote unique teachings of Chassidus, some of which are printed in the sefer Pelach Harimon. R. Hillel passed away on the 11th of Av, 5628.

The Rebbe Maharash related a story he personally witnessed:

R. Hillel Paritcher once asked the Tzemach Tzedek to recite Chassidus for him. When the Tzemach Tzedek's protested that it was difficult for him to speak, R. Hillel replied that he could suffice with a thought of Chassidus. After some deliberation, the Tzemach Tzedek donned the hat he wore when saying Chassidus, and he sat for a while with his hands over his eyes.

When R. Hillel exited the Rebbe's room, he repeated the maamar that the Tzemach Tzedek had transmitted to him by thought.

(רשימת היומן ע' שצ"א)

Although the Rebbeim would not wash for seuda shlishis on Shabbos, R. Hillel would.

The Frierdiker Rebbe explained the reason for this. A Rebbe must conduct himself in alignment with how things are on high, and the end of Shabbos is loftier than eating. A chossid, on the other hand, however he does his avoda is good, so long as he is humbled and gives away from himself.

(סה"ש תרפ"ט ע' 30)

A Moment with The Rebbe

TO CARE FOR A HURT GIRL

Reb Shmuel Kaufman and his wife, Risha, of Detroit, MI had been married for several years, but were not blessed with children. After consulting various Torah leaders, upon the advice of Reb Meir Avtzon, they traveled to the Rebbe.

After he explained his situation, the Rebbe asked him whether during his shidduchim meetings he had ever unintentionally hurt a girl's feelings to the point that she might have a grudge against him. Reb Shmuel answered, "No, to the best of my recollection."

The Rebbe then asked again, and again he said he does not recall. Eventually, he remembered one girl he had met, who might have been slighted.

The Rebbe directed him to ask forgiveness with a full heart and added "If she is forgives you, both you and she will be blessed."

Reb Shmuel located the girl, who was indeed hurt. However, after hearing the Rebbe's bracha, she forgave him. Some three months later, she became engaged. One month after that, Reb Shmuel's wife became expectant with the oldest of his six children.
