

RECITING TEHILLIM (II)

THE POWER OF TEHILLIM

Though Rebbitzin Chaya Mushka, the wife of the Tzemach Tzedek, would recite a lot of Tehillim, she would do so with many mistakes. When one of her sons pointed this out to her, she asked her husband whether perhaps she should stop saying Tehillim. The Rebbe advised her to continue and then called for his son and admonished him, saying that it was her Tehillim that had protected him at the Rabbinic Conference in Petersburg in x⁻¹n (1843). The government, enraged by his views, had placed the Rebbe under house arrest twenty-two times, and it was her Tehillim that had saved him from a more serious punishment.

On another occasion, too, when a libel was plotted against the Tzemach Tzedek, he asked his wife to recite Tehillim for him.

The Rebbe Maharash would travel for fresh air in the countryside around Lubavitch and often stop in one of the forests, sit on the ground, and recite Tehillim with tears on behalf of Klal Yisroel. On his way, he would pass a certain Yiddish-owned inn, but he never entered. One time, however, he ordered his wagon driver to stop, and upon entering the house, found two young boys alone at home. The Rebbe asked them to bring a Tehillim and together they sang the pesukim, repeating each word after him.

When the mother returned home, she was surprised to find the Rebbe in her home. The sweet tune to which he and her boys were reciting Tehillim brought her to tears. After half an hour, the Rebbe got up to go, but as he approached the door, he suddenly stopped, turned around and took the Tehillim to read some more. Some time later, he bentched them all and left. Hours passed, night fell, but the father did not return home. The mother tried to assure her children that he would soon return, but in truth, she was quite fearful herself.

Finally, in middle of the night, there was a knock on the door. Hearing her husband's voice, the mother quickly opened it, but as soon as her husband entered, he fell to the ground in a faint. After he revived, he shared his day's experience:

"I had gone to collect an old debt from one of the goyishe farmers. He invited me into the barn to pay up with grain, but then locked the door, tied me up, and tried to kill me. I pleaded with him, saying that I would absolve him of the debt, but he refused to listen. Searching for his axe, he left the barn, and tied the door from the outside. Realizing that my end was near, I began to recite vidui. At that moment the goy's wife passed the barn, heard my cries, and entered. I begged her to set me free.

"At first she wouldn't hear of it, fearful that her husband would kill her. At last she gave in, untied me, directed me to the best escape route, and quickly returned to the field. When the goy returned, he was fuming, and chased after me. I had anticipated this, and so I was hiding in the tall grass along the road. The goy came so close that I could smell the stench of his whiskey, but Boruch HaShem, he missed me and eventually returned home. I waited a while to be sure he would not see me, and then I came home."

Hearing his story, the woman exclaimed, "Now I understand why the Rebbe stopped by today and said Tehillim twice with the boys – once, so that you be set free, and again, so that the goy should not find you. Blessed be HaShem Who always works miracles for us!"

CONSIDER

In order to ward off a decree through Tehillim, is it necessary to have this in mind?

Why is the recitation of Tehillim being associated with the learning of Ein Yaakov and Chassidus?

ABOLISHING DECREES

The year the Frierdiker Rebbe was arrested, תרפ"ז (1927), was a fearful time in Lubavitch. On Simchas Torah, at the Kiddush in the home of his mother Rebbitzin Shterna Sarah, he begged his chassidim to say the daily portion of Tehillim every day of the month.

Later, when he was exiled in Kostrama, the Rebbe shared with the chassidim: "About the year דתרפ"ז I was very much afraid, not for myself, but for the chassidim." That was until Simchas Torah, when he requested that the chassidim recite Tehillim.

The day the Frierdiker Rebbe was arrested, a penciled note in his handwriting was found on his table. It read, "Listen, chassidim and all Yidden who long for Moshiach. Pass the word on in my name to all chassidim around the world – that I have directed that in all chassidishe shuls, after Shacharis every day (including Shabbos), Tehillim should be recited together with a minyan according to the monthly division, and this reading should be followed by Kaddish. In addition, all Yidden who work in the market and all businessmen who cherish the homely warmth of earlier times should go to shul for davening and should be present [between Minchah and Maariv] to learn Ein Yaakov. And HaShem will help them with a comfortable parnasa.

"When you speak to chassidim, tell them that this comes from me as an order; when you speak to other Yidden, tell them that out of my love for them, and out of my concern for the welfare of a fellow Yid, I ask them to fulfill the above requests.

"May HaShem bensch us all with a happy year, spiritually and materially, and may we merit a complete redemption through Moshiach. Amen."

Later, the Frierdiker Rebbe again emphasized that out of ahavas Yisroel, efforts should be made that all Yidden recite the daily Tehillim, as it is beneficial for children, health and parnassa.

The Frierdiker Rebbe also instituted that every Shabbos Mevarchim, chassidim should gather in shul to recite the entire Tehillim, and then learn Chassidus and daven. He emphasized that this is crucial to the wellbeing of one's children and grandchildren.

A chossid who was unable to complete the entire Tehillim before davening on Shabbos Mevarchim once asked the Rebbe what to do. The Rebbe advised him to try to complete his reading before Mincha, and if not, to complete it on Sunday (because Tehillim should not be recited at night before chatzos).

RABBI CHAIM HILLEL RASKIN ROV OF ANASH - PETACH TIKVA

SIX HOURS AFTER FLEISHIG SIDES

Do french fries fried in oil used for schnitzel make me fleishig?

Shulchan Aruch rules that one must wait six hours after eating even a little bit of meat or poultry before eating dairy.¹ According to Rashi, this is due to the meat's fatty residue remaining in the throat and mouth. The Rambam explains that the concern is for meat that may be stuck between the teeth (but after six hours, the remnants are no longer halachically "meat").²

In practice, we follow both views and if there's still meat stuck in one's teeth after six hours, it must be removed, but they don't necessitate additional waiting (even if swallowed).³

The above reasons wouldn't seem applicable to food cooked with meat and separated (tavshil shel basar), such as rice cooked with meat or eggs from a cholent.⁴ Yet, the Rama rules to wait just like after meat itself,⁵ and prominent Sefardic poskim rule likewise.⁶ Pareve foods cooked with milchigs one does not need to wait, as the waiting after milchigs is merely a hiddur.

What if pareve food was cooked in a fleishig pot that wasn't completely clean?

The Shach rules that a small amount of residue would not necessitate waiting six hours since it is minute in the mixture.⁷ Others require that the residue be batel b'shishim (less than a 60th) relative to the rest of the dish.⁸ Similarly, an onion — or other sharp food — cut with a clean fleishig knife, although it cannot be eaten with milk, would not make someone fleishig, (though some are machmir that one who is fleishig shouldn't eat an onion cut with a milchig knife, see issue 438).

Sometimes, french fries are fried in the same oil previously used for schnitzel or meat. Does one need to wait six hours after the french fries?

While some consider this a tavshil shel basar which requires waiting six hours, others hold it's more lenient since the taste transfer was indirect — first into the oil and then into the fries – and it's enough to wait one hour. ⁹The common custom it to wait six hours.

REB MICHEL OPOTZKER

Reb Yechiel Michel Opotzker (Opotzk is the name of an inn) was a great chossid of the Alter Rebbe. He had a tremendously deep mind and was a very great masmid. He was a great gaon with thorough knowledge of Talmud Bavli and Yerushalmi, the Poskim and their sources in the Rambam and Rashba and Sifrei Kabbala. Reb Michel was known to be a great ba'al madreiga who had ruach hakodesh and gilui Eliyahu. He was the teacher of the Rashbatz.

Reb Michel never became a Rov and despised any kind of position of honor and authority. In general, he distanced himself from people and wanted to be alone. Nevertheless, when a chossid passed by his town on his way to Lubavitch, Reb Michel would carry his bags and escort him two or three kilometers. When the Rashbatz was seventeen, he was told by Reb Michel that he was ready to go to the Rebbe. Reb Michel was an old man but insisted on escorting the Rashbatz and carrying his suitcase. The eltere chassidim were wary of the bizarre scene and protested, "Is it correct for an older man to serve a bochur?!" Reb Michel replied, "He (the Rashbatz) will be a greater chossid than you..."

When Rashbatz traveled to the Tzemach Tzeddek, Reb Michel gave him a sealed PaN and warned him not to read it. On the way, Rashbatz could not resist and he opened the envelope: the PaN inside was blank on both sides...

He arrived in Lubavitch early Friday morning after having walked about 20 kilometers from the nearby town of Rudnia. Entering the Beis Medrash he found chassidim of all ages learning, as they would do all Thursday night, and he quickly fell asleep. Soon, Reb Chaim Ber the meshares entered the Beis Medrash and asked, "Who arrived from Reb Michel Opotzker?" Rashbatz was sound asleep and no one else knew from where he had come. Reb Chaim Ber left, but returned a short while later. On the fourth attempt, Rashbatz woke up and came forward. Reb Chaim Ber told him that he was immediately to go with him to the Tzemach Tzeddek. Rashbatz was hesitant to go before going to the mikvah, but he did not have a choice.

Upon entering the Tzemach Tzeddek's room he froze in shock and could not move a limb. The Tzemach Tzeddek rebuked him (for opening the PaN), "A young man must follow orders!" The Tzemach Tzeddek stuck his hand in Rashbatz's jacket pocket, took out the PaN, and began reading it... Stunned, Rashbatz remained frozen in his place, until Reb Chaim Ber carried him out of the room.

PERSISTENCE IN LEARNING

Naaseh before Nishma is a common theme in Chassidus avoda, to follow the Torah's directive irrespective of one's intellectual grasp of the reasoning.

However, in one case, the Rebbe guided someone to apply this principle in his actual learning as well.

Gershon, searching for direction in the area of Chassidus study, wrote to the Rebbe. In his response, the Rebbe suggested that he approach a practicing Mashpia at the yeshiva in New York, who will be able to design a curriculum for him.

But the Rebbe did leave Gershon with one nugget of advice:

"You must apply to your Chassidus learning, as in all areas of torah study, the attitude of na'aseh precedes nishma. Meaning that before one begins to study, he must make a firm resolution to be successful despite the idiom of our Sages that 'all beginnings are difficult.""
